CHILDREN—BY J. B. JOHNSON.

If it affords the mind of man delight to contemplate the favorable growth of those works which his ingenuity invents, and his industry brings to mathematical and mechanical perfection, how much more infinite must be his grateful pleasure when he views the child, which God entrusted to his care, led, free from all the gross sins of life, up to the full measure of virtuous manhood; and if it gives man renown to be distinguished among his fellow-men for the value of his good qualities, how much greater glory must it yield him, when he, in obedience to heaven's law, rear his child to worth, honor and religion? A good child is a never-ceasing flow of joy and sunshine to its parents heart; and, however indifferent a parent may be to the proper moral culture of his offspring, he can never fail to see the wide difference between a good and a bad child; for there is an instinctive something that prompts him to order to render him a joy to my thoughts, useful to himself, and an example of good to his race? The Bible, in this, as in all instances, having reference to the natural relations of man to the world, declares the answer, and points the way by indicating the duty of rearing children to be a practical one. Its instructions on the subject, are as plain as they are practical; and so positive are its commands to parents in regard to the government of their children, that they are mandatory, and do not admit even the tenderness of infantile years, to be offered as a barrier against an early and decisive infliction of corporeal punishment when refractory dispositions demand it; for it is enjoined, "Chasten thy son, while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying." If Scripture is stern and immutable in the character of its laws and instructions, it is at the same time profuse in its promises of rewards of pleasure and ease, if its laws and instructions are obeyed; and in no duty of life, is this fact more clearly exemplified than in that of the moral training of children; for it is vouchsafed to a parent, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." The language of this Proverb is as firm as it is beautiful in its assurance of success; and, in all probability, no parent who has strictly obeyed it, has ever been disappointed in the possession of a child whose habits and worth, have failed to be an ornament of grace to him under all the varied changes of chance and time.

As the child is to be the future man, and as the man is to exert influence for good or evil, it is nearly important to have the child taught, as nearly as possible, to be the perfect man, and not to leave at every step, as he stumbles over life's path, the vile impress of some odious habit; or to bring, as he rushes into the sinfulness of the world, shame upon his parent, and making him a good man, rests content with his parent, and so incumbent is this office, that no excuse which he can offer, will avail to palliate the wrong to the child, if he neglects his responsibility to it. This duty does not consist in providing the child with all the comforts that its physical nature may demand, for that is purely animal; but in the higher and nobler effort to establish fixed and positive rules to meet the wants of the moral obligations of a parent, and to erect a parental command that will, from the earliest dawn of the child's intellect, make it known that its will must, in every instance, and under all circumstances, be subservient and obedient to that of its parent. This is the golden rule in the moral education of children; and on no other plan, can a parent claim success in the proper tutelage of his child; for it is written: "Correct thy son, and he shall give thee rest, yea, he shall give delight unto thy soul." Hence the parent who conducts his offspring to a virtuous maturity, is greater than he who overcomes the trials of commerce, and accumulates great riches; for he has returned to him, all profit and no loss, all pleasure and no pain.

He bestows upon his child not the winged possessions of fickle opulence, that may prove a snare to his passions, and a curse to his soul, but the priceless safeguard of early teaching, and the heart-whispers of the echoes of a virtuous childhood. The dear scenes of the hearthstone's pious schooling, and the soul thoughts of a fond fireside's implanted principles, will be far more to him than the secondary importance of wealth, and will cluster around him when his spirit's nights are dark, and bring with their cherished remembrance, the precious words of a parent's devout prayer for his welfare. This will be all the wealth that he will need, and requires no cunning locks to keep it; for the child whose mind has been imbedded with good habits and correct morals, can never be poor, and can never be led to despise either his parent or his teaching. The world's sin may endeavor to allure him, and folly with its artifice, and vice with its devices, may essay to entice him to wrongfulness, but he will be found to be proof against them all, and the instructions of his parent will be as a chain about his feet. His powers of resistance to evil will increase with his years of approaching manhood, and lead him from temptation. His course will be pleasant and well defined, and the vice marks, which he had been taught to shun, will always tell him of his way; for like a faithful guide, the memory of his training, will ever linger about him, and breathe kindly in his ear, the sweet reward of virtue, and the quiet recompense of truth.

WHAT! PAPER BAGS AGAIN?
Yes! PAPER BAGS again, and it will be again and again to that, if a discriminating people continue to buy. I shall continue the people, and keep up the cry, PAPER BAGS. By calling and examining these Paper Bags, you will soon discover why they sell so readily upon so short an acquaintance, and that is their cheapness, and this grows out of the fact that we manufacture our material out of which these Paper Bags are made, thus saving one cent from the price of the material, which gives them a wide margin according to their list prices.

In conclusion, I have just received a LARGE SUPPLY of these PAPER BAGS; also, common and fine MANILLA WRAPPING PAPER, direct from two manufacturers, and intend to make these articles specialties in connection with my other Paper and Stationery business. You need not go beyond Alexandria for these things, at least.

MEDICAL.
BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.
ESTABLISHED AS A REFUGE FROM QUACKERY.
THE ONLY PLACE WHERE A CURE
CAN BE OBTAINED.

DR. JOHNSON has discovered the most Certain, Speedy, and only Effectual Remedy in the World for Weakness of the Back or Limbs, Strictures, Affection of the Kidneys or Bladder, Involuntary Discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Langor, Low Spirits, Copiousness of tears, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling, Dimness of Sight, or Giddiness, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose, or Skin, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach, or Bowels—those Terrible Disorders arising from Solitary Habits of Youth—second and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the song of Sirens to the Mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN,
Especially, who have become the victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most excellent talents and brilliant intellects, who might otherwise have entered listless Senators with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstasy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.
Married Persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of Physical Weakness, Organic Debility, Deformities, speedily cured.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS
Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affection, which renders life miserable and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victims of impropriety. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, what understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost, sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The System becomes deranged, Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, Nervous Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, and Wasting of the Frame, Consumption, Decay and Death.

DR. JOHNSON,
